

what is project ABOUT?

The main objective of the SILVER project was to create and implement a distance training which would help to improve skills and employability of people over 50 years old. Our mission is to support the discussion with all the relevant stakeholders (employers, training institutions, career advisors), in order to identify the constraints of seniors in access to qualification and employment and expand the lifelong learning and "silver economy" concepts in companies and training organizations.

Our idea was to create a training programme which meets the needs of people 50 years old and over. In order to do so, we did a survey, talked to relevant stakeholders and seniors and analyzed it. Based on results we developed a training programme which we believe will help people over 50 years old to become more confident when looking for a job or when trying to (re)integrate on the labour market.

WHO IS IT FOR?

The training programme is suitable for everyone who would like to improve their skills. But we created it with following target groups in mind.
